Category: Academic Affairs - Operational

Responsible Officer: Associate VP, University Marketing Communications

Effective Date: 09/08/2018

Policy Summary

---

This policy outlines the guidelines to be used when ordering university stationery.

---

Scope

---

This policy affects the following groups of the University:

- Entire University Community

This policy affects all members of the University Community.

Policy

DePaul stationery must be used for all official university correspondence. The stationery set includes letterhead, envelopes, business cards and note pads. Faculty and staff may not use promotional materials such as mastheads created for fact sheets, or other materials for correspondence.

All stationery must be ordered through University Marketing. Faculty and staff are not permitted to purchase stationery items from outside sources. University Marketing sets the standard for how information is displayed on these items.

DePaul letterhead will include a URL only if the site is part of the depaul.edu domain; complies with all university policies, including the Acceptable Use policy and the University Logo and Signature policy; and is specific to the college, department, office, institute, or center. The format for URLs is depaul.edu. Personal websites, whether external or within the depaul.edu domain, are not allowed.

DePaul business cards will only include "@depaul.edu," "cdm.depaul.edu" or "cs.depaul.edu" e-mail addresses. Personal e-mail addresses are not allowed.

A template for electronic letterhead is available from University Marketing. This template may be used to create letters that are sent by email. Faculty and staff should not create their own electronic letterhead, because university letterhead must meet exact specifications. The electronic template should not be used to produce university letterhead on an office printer. This practice is more expensive and creates lower-quality letterhead than ordering through University Marketing.

Student organizations, club sports and other recognized groups may create their own letterhead and business cards using the words "DePaul University" and their own logo, but may not use DePaul's logo, signature, athletic logo, seal, coat of arms, letterhead or business cards. As a student benefit, University Marketing has created several wordmarks that student groups can use in lieu of creating their own logo. In certain instances, official student organizations may use DePaul's logo with prior permission from the Associate Vice President of University Marketing. Groups of students not recognized as official organizations by the Office of Student Involvement may not use DePaul's name, logo, signature, athletic logo, any other university marks or the university's address.

When determined necessary by a manager, business cards may be produced for student employees to identify their role as DePaul staff members. In these cases, the head of the department must approve and pay for the cards from a university budget.

Students who wish to create their own business cards indicating their status as a student for networking or other purposes may do so at their own expense, but may not include information regarding student employment or the university's logo or signature. However, the card may state that they are enrolled at DePaul University if they are an enrolled student in good standing.
